About ten o'clock on Thursday night the residents of the southeast part of town became aware of sweet strains of music floating in the evening air making a pleasant contrast to the chirp of the cricket. All listened intently until the end of the selection and then investigated. It was the Lehi choir out serenading one of its members, Elder Joseph Kirkham, who left the next morning for a mission to Great Britain. Besides treating the assembled crowd to their musical selections they presented Mr. Kirkham with a handsomely bound copy of the L. D. S. Psalmody and $5, and all wished him success in his missionary labors.
